

Dr. Lorena Dollani

Dr. Lorena Dollani is a Board-Certified Dermatologist practicing in Washington, DC. Her scope of practice includes medical dermatology for both adults and children, surgical dermatology, and cosmetic dermatology. Dr. Dollani was born in Albania but grew up in Massachusetts. She earned her B.S. in Microbiology, with the highest honors of Summa Cum Laude from the University of Massachusetts, Amherst and her M.D at the University of Massachusetts Medical School. Dr. Dollani was also inducted in the Gold Humanism Medical Honor Society for her excellence in clinical care, leadership, compassion and dedication.

Dr. Dollani then completed a rigorous five-year combined residency in Dermatology and Internal Medicine at Georgetown University and Washington Hospital Center, where she served as Chief Resident during her last year of training. During her residency she trained at Children's National Medical Center, National Institutes of Health, and INOVA Melanoma and Skin Cancer Center. Dr. Dollani has presented at multiple state and national conferences and authored multiple manuscripts in scholarly journals in dermatology. She is also a member of the American Academy of Dermatology and Women's Dermatologic Society. Having trained in both Dermatology and Internal Medicine, she has experience across both disciplines which aids in caring for patients with complex dermatologic illnesses.

Dr. Dollani recognizes how difficult it is to become a woman physician, especially as an immigrant. She looks forward to empower and offer mentorship in medicine to other Albanian women.

When not seeing patients, Dr. Dollani is an avid foodie and traveler. Most of all, she enjoys spending time with her 4-year-old son
